

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.

The Frontier Guardian. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1852.

STARTLING TELEGRAPHIC REPORT

FIVE DAYS FROM NEW YORK TO THIS OFFICE, AND TWENTY DAYS FROM LIVERPOOL.

We are indebted to the courtesy of Major J. E. Barrow, for forwarding us the report from St. Joseph, Missouri: "The Liverpool telegraph from London gives a report of a threatened invasion of England, by Louis Napoleon. The report was currently believed in London. The Government has ordered 30,000 stand of arms from Birmingham, and 25,000 troops to London. Orders have been sent to all the principal commanders of ships, to return to England with all dispatch."

Zeal for Law and Order.

We are pleased to see certain members of the bar so loyal and patriotic to sustain the laws of Iowa, as they have shown themselves at a recent public meeting, and also in a handbill respecting the treatment of the Indians. After this, we shall expect to see no one of them withdraw or absent himself from an important committee appointed by the citizens to draft resolutions upon the subject of law and order, as on a former occasion. The strict observance of the law is what every good citizen should regard. The declaration is made, that if any man hickories an Indian in this town according to Major Barrow's letter, the law against assault and battery shall be enforced against him. We are to inquire whether or not such a declaration is the result of a purely patriotic impulse to have the code of Iowa duly enforced? Charity would say, yes! But we will give you a key by which you may know for certain. There are certain places in this town where liquor is retailed by the drink. Will any dispute this? If so, will they not put us to the test to prove it? We call these places "grog shops," where the root of most of our troubles exists. The legislature of our State have marked this traffic, an offence against the laws, of a greater magnitude than that of an assault and battery under ordinary circumstances. Now, when these legal gentlemen will enforce the law against this unlawful traffic in ardent spirits, the proof of which can be readily obtained, we will call them gentlemen, and not object to any one of them receiving an appointment to the office of Judge, in case of a vacancy, which is likely to occur. But if they do not enforce the law against these groggeries, then let them be silent about Maj. Barrow's letter concerning hickories the Indians. For an unlawful traffic with the Indians in liquor, &c., is one of the principal causes that renders the hickory necessary. If any depredation is committed by the Indians on this side, then Major Barrow is concerned or not keeping his Indians at home. If the unlawful traffic on this side with the Indians vexes the Major, and provokes him to recommend strong and salutary measures, though not, perhaps, according to the letter of the statute, the poor Major is then benighted and raked down.

The truth of the whole matter is just about here. Stop the liquor trade on this side, and the fallow ground is broken up. If men of talents would direct their energies right here at home against the liquor traffic, they would contribute more to the public good, than by making a government officer an offender for a word, who seeks by all reasonable means, in the absence of an armed force, to keep the Indians in their own territory. We do not know who has sold or given liquor to the Indians on this side; but several of them have been drunk, and we conclude that Mr. Somebody has furnished them liquor.

"The Church is feverish and disordered when zeal runs high and charity low."

Guardian Office.

BACK NUMBERS of the Guardian, Books of Doctrine and Covenants, Hymn Books, Mormon guides across the plains, School Books, State and Lead pencils, Writing Paper, Olive Oil, Dried Apples, Sugar, Tea and Coffee, for sale at this Office.

Read.

One Tierce of Crockery Ware in store belonging to William Cutler—deceased, in the Valley of the Salt Lake. His friends can have it by calling at this Office and paying charges; or it will be sold at public sale.

The Council of administration at Fort Kearney O. R., has appointed W. R. English, Esq., of Austin, Fremont County, Iowa, Sutter, in place of R. and W. Campbell, of St. Louis, Missouri, subject to the approval of the Secretary of War.

Rich.

It is too rich to suppress, therefore we publish the quotation. The St. Louis Republican thinks that the returning officers from Utah in their official report, have offered no new reasons or facts for deserting their posts. While we are willing to give that Journal credit for general correctness, we think the following from their Official Report, an addition to their former reports; and indeed, the huge as which they turned from their posts of duty in that distant land.

"We deem it our duty to state in this official communication, that polygamy, or plurality of wives, is openly avowed and practised in the Territory, under the sanction and in obedience to the direct commands of the Church. So universal is this practice, that very few, if any, leading men in that community can be found who have not more than one wife each, which creates a monopoly, and which was peculiarly hard upon the officers sent to reside there."

The reader will observe the word "Monopoly" in the above extract. If the officers had said that the practice of polygamy among the Mormons rendered their stay in that Territory unpleasant, and obnoxious to themselves, it would have betrayed no improper sentiment. But when they talk about this "monopoly" making it "peculiarly hard" upon them, the subject changes its complexion. So they left, came home, and cry "our grapes" in Washington, because others monopolized them all, and they, (poor fellows) go home.

The foregoing quotation and comments, we are satisfied, give a faithful illustration of the peculiar character of one of the officers with whom we had the best opportunity of forming an acquaintance. Of the character of the other officers in this respect, we claim no particular knowledge, except as far as we have seen in the public papers, and their own signatures.

Letter to Orson Hyde.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, November 29th, 1851.

DEAR BROTHER:—A line from Br. S. W. Richards informs us of your loss of mules on your return. It seems indeed that the Indians have a particular spite against you. Since you left this place, myself in company with Br. Kimball, Professors Pratt and Carrington, George A. Smith, Judge Snow, and several others accompanied the Committee to Parowan Valley, who were appointed to locate the Seat of Government for this Territory. We found a beautiful site on a Creek, heretofore known as Chalk Creek, the Indian name of which is Nuquin. You will learn the particulars of the trip, as also more extended particulars from the Deseret News, the improved appearance of which in amount of matter and size cannot fail to recommend itself to the patronage of all the Saints.

Since our return my health has not been as good as could be wished, although I have been about the most of the time. The times are continuing rather dull for the merchants and traders, but we find plenty to do. The Tabernacle is progressing, and will if the present fine weather continues, soon be secured and ready for use although we do not expect to fully finish it before Spring.

Our other buildings are principally covered, and all the work done to be progressing, as well as could be expected at this inclement season of the year.

The Indians are generally peaceably inclined at the present time, and in fact all seems quiet and peaceful throughout all the settlements in the valleys of the mountains. The settlements are now becoming quite extended. The two settlements made this Fall in Juab, on Salt Creek, and Millard County, on Nuquin, render it quite safe to travel with but a small escort from here to Parowan, in Iron County. There is also an extension of that settlement South about twenty-five miles, on what has been known on the Big Muddy, now called Coal Creek, being the Creek in the Canyon of which Coal is found. Br. Carruthers has been appointed to reside at that place, and about seventy men have located there. Br. Bladen and others who understand the manufacturing of iron, are in the Company, and we indulge the hope of soon having the pleasure of announcing the IRON MANUFACTURE, in successful operation. We can now travel to that place by making about thirty-five miles a day, without camping away from settlements, more than two or three nights, a distance of two hundred and eighty-five miles. We have made arrangements with the brethren of San Pete, to furnish on the ground early in the Spring, in Fillmore City, all the Joiner work ready prepared for the State House, one wing of which we contemplate having in readiness for the next winter's Legislature.

I observe an article in your paper concerning a letter published in the St. Louis Intelligencer. I do not know that it is worth while to pay any attention to such nonsense, the name of the man who wrote the letter is Major Singer. He was embroiled in difficulty all winter with a man whose name I do not remember, though not a Mormon, and finally got into law suits, which rather terminated against him and applied to me to assist him. I used all the influence for him that I could to induce the officers to give their costs so that his property should not be sacrificed that he might not be prevented from pursuing his journey. They did so, and he together with all the rest, went on together as I am informed.

Bishop Clark could give you all the particulars if it shall become necessary to inquire any further into the matter, as it all occurred in his vicinity, and if I mistake not partially before him.

Presuming that you are very busy preparing to emigrate hither in the Spring, and hoping to see you here with your establishment in successful operation at an early day. I close by subscribing myself,

Your Friend and Brother,

In the Gospel of Peace,

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

Utah and Congress.

In the House of Representatives on the 10th ult. the following proceedings were had:

By unanimous consent, a message from the President, transmitting a report to the State Department, upon the condition of things in Utah, from the returned United States territorial officers, were presented to the House.

Mr. Polk conceived this to be an important matter. He moved its reference to the committee on territories, and that it be printed.

Mr. Bernhisel, taking the floor, moved that this report be referred to the committee on the judiciary, and that it be printed, and addressed the House, holding that the report was a gross libel upon Governor Young, and the Mormons from end to end. He designed at the proper time to move for the appointment of a commissioner to repair to Utah to take testimony, the result of which, he knew, would be to prove the gross falsehood of the representations of the returning United States officers of the territories.

Messrs. Stuart and Clingman (members of that committee) argued to show that this report should appropriately go to the committee on territories.

Mr. Clingman then moved the previous question, but withdrew it at the request of Mr. Giddings, who sustained the motion of Mr. Bernhisel, for the reference to the committee on the judiciary.

Mr. McDannahan advocated the reference to the committee on territories.

Mr. Bernhisel withdrew the motion to refer to the committee on the judiciary.

A motion to adjourn being made here, it was not agreed to.

case, and to authorize the delegate to employ counsel for the Mormons in the case at the public charge. But, many members objecting, leave to introduce this resolution was not granted.

On the Death of a Young Brother.

BY MISS LAURA M. HYDE.

Softly fall the dews of evening O'er that loved one's early grave— Yet to think of him is pleasing For our Jesus died to save.

Forest trees o'er him are waving Fleecy boughs in verdure dress; And the little streamlet's laving The sweet water lilies' crest.

These mark the spot where we weeping Laid him down to sleep in dust; And it seem'd our hearts were breaking, But in God we put our trust.

Though we hope he is enjoying Pleasures with the angels blest; Still a sister's heart is yearning For the one her love caressed.

In the grave we left him lying, And we wait with anxious eyes, 'Till the trump of God is sounding, When that lov'd one will arise.

Query!

If Governor Young of Utah, is so disloyal to the Government of the United States, and its officers as some would have him to be; why should he name the Seat of Government, FILLMORE CITY, and the County, MILLARD County? We answer, it is because that the Governor cherishes the most amiable feelings toward the present Executive; Read the following from the Deseret News, of November 29th, 1851.

President's Visit South.

On the 21st of Oct. ult., Presidents Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, and elder George A. Smith, the Board of Commissioners for locating the Seat of Government for Utah, his honor Judge Snow, Gen. D. H. Wells, Major Rose, Sub Indian Agent, and several other citizens, left G. S. L. City, on a southern tour, for Pauan Valley.

Passing through Utah and Juab valleys, by the lower ford of the Sevier, and across Lake Valley, in 151 miles they reached Chalk Creek, in Pauan Valley October 28th.

October 30th, the site for the Seat of Government was determined, about one mile east of the ford, at the west slope of the table lands, lying on each side of Chalk Creek, and the survey thereof began; this City is called Fillmore, and the County Millard. The few Indians who appeared at the City, professed very great friendship, and promised good behavior to Bishop Call and company, who were on the ground, ready to build a fort forthwith, a work preparatory to meeting fields, and building up the City.

The Governor and company returned by way of San Pete Valley, where Judge Snow organized the Court of the 2d Judicial District, at the City of Mant, the County of San Pete, and reached G. S. L. City on the 7th inst.

The health of the whole party was good, the weather delightful, the valleys lovely; and the company were received in all the settlements with the highest marks of consideration and gladness; and the unity, visited, are truly wonderful to any person who was acquainted with this country only four years ago. The report of the Commissioners, and history of the country on the route, we anticipate next.

Who is the worst person in town? He or she who has much evil to say of many! and little good of any.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.—Hon. John M. Bernhisel, of Utah—Hon. B. Henn, of Iowa, and Hon. Stephen A. Douglas, of Illinois, will accept our thanks for public favors.

Storage and Commission Business.

Prompt attention will be given by ORSON HYDE, to Receiving, Storing and Forwarding Goods, Wares and Merchandise. Liberal Advances made on consignments. Kanerville, Feb. 20th, 1852.

Railroad.

We are decidedly in favor of the Great Central Route for the construction of a Railroad from Lafayette, Indiana, by the way of Peoria and Burlington, to the Missouri river, near Kanerville. This is the Great Central Route, and we are in for it. We have signed the Memorial.

Award.

"My Native Land" by "MYSELF," draws the highest prize. If "VIRGINIA," on "Evening Thoughts and the Dying Scholar" had not been in error in measure, she might have borne off the Palm. Her productions are sweet and chaste.

"Random Thoughts on Day and Night," by "KANERVILLINA," the best prose. "BY MYSELF" on "Hope," is incorrect. "Hope" is not "the prime mover of all our actions," but Faith is the incentive, and Hope the prospective. Still, it is a well written piece. "MYSELF" and "KANERVILLINA" are the same person: She can therefore only draw one prize.

Ourselves may therefore expect to receive a visit from "MYSELF," and ourselves will pay to "MYSELF," Three Dollars, and ourselves will pay to Miss "VIRGINIA," Two Dollars. The sum and substance of the award by the respective Judges. Please call and receive your prize money.

The election in Great Salt Lake county, on Saturday, November 15th, resulted in the choice of Edward Hunter and Orson Pratt, as Counsellors, and John Brown Representative, to the Legislative Assembly.—(Deseret News.)

International Monthly Magazine.

The January number of this valuable Periodical is before us; it contains a brief review of historical facts that we think cannot fail to amuse the reader.

The views of the Editor, relative to the Blancher Outcome, are rather too hasty and correct, although reasonable. Many of the facts set out of respect to American grain and go—should have been put on the spot, more correct report to country, than to the celebrity gained by its opponents; while at the same time its adoption to American industry has not been fully considered by them. There is an error in the sentence, and good ladies from the following edition: "That a really responsible man, but never yet named the Blancher Outcome." And hereafter we hope to hear more of it.

Several advertisements are repeated each week. They will appear in our next.

State Whig Convention.

There will be a State Whig Convention, held in Iowa City, Thursday, the 28th February next. Each County being entitled to the same number of Delegates that they have Senators and Representatives in the Legislature. They are therefore requested to hold meetings in the different counties and send up Delegates accordingly. By order of the Committee, A. B. PORTER, Chairman.

Married.

At North Platte; by Elder Joshua Hall, on the 25th ult., Mr. WILLIAM BEAL, to Mrs. ELIZA JAMES HARDY, both of this County.

Mr. THOMAS WINN to Miss PHEBE ORTON, Jan. 17th.

Mr. ELI B. HAMILTON, to Miss SARAH ORTOFF, Feb. 1st.

Mr. IRAM VANLUVEN to Miss NANCY E. BENNETT, Feb. 5th, 1852, by Elder G. C. Snow, of Carterville.

Died.

At Council Point, on the 8th ult., ORLIVA, daughter of Orrin D. and Plavilla Farlin, aged 19 months.

In St. Joseph, Mo., on the 16th day of December, 1851, MARY GREENALGH. Aged 37 years.

She left a family of small children to mourn a mother's loss. She was formerly from England having joined the Church there, and passed through all the persecutions in Illinois, is now gone to reap the reward of the righteous in a world without end.

New Advertisements.

ELDERS TAKE NOTICE.

THE next regular meeting of the Elder's Quorum, will be held at the Court House, in Kanerville, on Sunday, the 7th of March, at 12 o'clock. Every member of the Quorum is specially requested to be present, as the business of the utmost importance will be laid before the meeting. By order of the Quorum, JOHN REESE, Pres.

A. Nov, Clerk, Kanerville, February 20th, 1852.—14.

TO ALL WHO WANT THEIR SHEEP HERDED AND DRIVEN TO THE VALLEY.

HAVING secured the services of English Shepherds of great experience, who are well supplied with thoroughly trained Shepherd dogs. I am prepared to contract for the herding and driving of ONE THOUSAND or TWELVE HUNDRED sheep to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake this season, and flatter myself that, with the above facilities, I shall be enabled to give entire satisfaction to all who will entrust their sheep to my care. My terms for driving are, the ONE HALF OF THE NUMBER DELIVERED IN THE VALLEY. I expect to be ready to start by the 20th day of May, and will receive flocks of sheep, and receipt for them any time between the first day of May, and the time of starting. Shearing should be done at as late a period previous to the time of starting as possible; or else the "needle" growing on the sheep's backs, will adhere to the wool and seriously injure it. If not destroyed the sheep, if they are to be shorn, will have their fleeces ruined. For those whose early departure shall prevent them clearing their own flocks; I will wash, shear, and dispose of the wool for the one half, and will pay the proceeds of their shear, or their order here in the Valley, as they may wish.

If I should be from home when flocks are brought for delivery, Elder Duncan Campbell, will act as my Agent in receiving and receipting for them. Each flock must be marked "PECULIAR" with "Elder Orson Hyde, and Ezra T. Benson" on the neck.

By order of Elder Orson Hyde, and Ezra T. Benson, ELI B. KELSEY.

Carterville, Feb. 20th, 1852.—3m.

FRUIT, CHOICE FRUIT.

THE Subscriber living in Carterville, near Kanerville, has on hand a large number of cuttings of the finest varieties of the Grape; so a fine lot of Black, White, and Red Currant bushes of one year's growth. The Grape cuttings are taken from the choicest samples of the Muscat, Muskatine, and Black Hamburg vines growing in England. The Black Currants were taken from bushes bearing berries as large as cherries, and the White and Red Currants are of the best varieties. These cuttings were sent from England in the year 1851, as an experiment, with the hope of introducing the choice fruits, for which England is famous, into the settlements of the Saints in the Far West. Those going to the Valley in 1852, will do well to carry a few with them, which will be done by putting them in pots with soil.

The above are on sale, and all who desire to supply themselves with choice fruits will do well to call soon. ELI B. KELSEY.

N. B. I have also about thirty choice Peach trees of two years growth, which I will sell separately, or I expect to be ready to start by the 20th day of May, and will receive flocks of sheep, and receipt for them any time between the first day of May, and the time of starting. Shearing should be done at as late a period previous to the time of starting as possible; or else the "needle" growing on the sheep's backs, will adhere to the wool and seriously injure it. If not destroyed the sheep, if they are to be shorn, will have their fleeces ruined. For those whose early departure shall prevent them clearing their own flocks; I will wash, shear, and dispose of the wool for the one half, and will pay the proceeds of their shear, or their order here in the Valley, as they may wish.

If I should be from home when flocks are brought for delivery, Elder Duncan Campbell, will act as my Agent in receiving and receipting for them. Each flock must be marked "PECULIAR" with "Elder Orson Hyde, and Ezra T. Benson" on the neck.

By order of Elder Orson Hyde, and Ezra T. Benson, ELI B. KELSEY.

Carterville, Feb. 20th, 1852.—3m.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

ONE or two persons acquainted with wagon making, more especially with wagon wheels, will find steady employment by calling upon the subscriber at his residence, on Hyde Street, a few rods North of the Court House.

J. C. LITTLE.

Kanerville, Feb. 20th, 1852.

OH YES! OH YES!!

The World on fire from the excitement caused by the Gold of California.

THE undersigned wishes to give notice to the inhabitants of this section of country that he is prepared to drive any number of SHEEP from this place to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake in the coming Spring on condition of one-half of the Sheep. The owners of the sheep should shear them early, and be prepared for an early start. The sheep should also be marked with the initials of the owners name on each side of the face with red paint. Those wishing to send sheep by him on the above terms, can leave their names and the number of their sheep with C. H. Bassett, at the store of C. Voorhis, Kanerville. The sheep he will receive on this side of the Missouri river, just previous to the time of starting which he will publish in the Guardian.

References.—C. H. Bassett, and E. M. Croome, Kanerville; Wm. Marindale, Peay Creek; L. T. Cook, Coonville; Martin Potter, Silver Creek; Joseph Thorn, Allred's Camp; John W. Cooley, Cooley's Mill; J. C. Hall, and John W. Lasey, North Pigeon. JESSE HOBSON.

North Pigeon, Feb. 6th, 1852.—3m.

CITY STOVE STORE.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Tin, Copper, Sheet Iron, and Brass Ware.

Manufacturers.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Manufacturers.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Manufacturers.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Manufacturers.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Manufacturers.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Manufacturers.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Manufacturers.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Manufacturers.

W. & R. M. ROGERS, Main Street, Kanerville.

Manufacturers.

From the Deseret News.

Important to the Saints.

Read the following and be governed thereby! THINGS WANTED.—A few tons of nails, of various sizes, from window blind nails to twelve pennies; not a pound to be had in this city, for gold, that we know of.

Five hundred envelopes wanted at our office, for posting official documents. If there are any in this city, we wish our friends would inform us where.

CONSOLOATION.—For the consolation of those who are living out of doors for want of nails to build houses, we would observe that a company has recently gone to Iron County, for the purpose of erecting a furnace; and if they are successful, as we confidently anticipate they will be, not many years! not months will not pass before they will have iron in our market; then if a machine can be procured we can make our own nails, with which to build our houses. But a pound of nails is so much heavier than a pound of feathers, silks, or even broadcloth, that no one can afford to transport them for less than fifty per cent additional cost upon cartage, and impossible to be had at that extra.

Therefore, those who may be immigrating to this place within a year or two, had better bring nails, if they want a ready sale for their goods; and as to envelopes, we understand a paper mill has commenced, or is about commencing to be built on Cottonwood, and those brethren in the vicinity of the mill will do well to put in their laboring, and help build said mill as fast as possible, so that we can have envelopes of our own, home domestic manufacture. But what shall we do for rags? Let all the people of Deseret save their rags, every one of their rags; and pretty soon they will be better than gold, for they will buy nails and envelopes, but gold will buy neither at present.

Monies Received Since Feb. 6, 1852.

Harris Grove Ass'n 2	50	James Snow,	50
J W Pierce,	50	James Bennett,	50
Philip Ballard,	50	James Kilfoyle,	50
Jacob Zandel,	50	Benj. Aber,	50
John Zundel,	50	David McKentle,	50
Moses A. Vince,	1 00	Wm Morgan,	50
Charles Luptworth,	50	T B Graham,	50
Benj. Bullock,	1 00	Justin J Johnson,	50
John Cummings,	50	A G Ingram,	50
Isaac Bullock, Esq.,	50	George Brown,	50
John Mathews,	50	David Wood,	50
J J Singleton,	2 50	Samuel Gates,	50
C H Bassett,	2 50	Abraham Shaw,	50
John Ormond,	1 00	John H. Moore,	50
Samuel Keele,	50	Daniel R Allen,	50
Huntington Johnson,	50	James Vacham,	50
David Deval,	50	Orin Jeffers,	50
A Boynton,	1 10	A S Stanley,	2 40
Harriet Morris,	50	Alvira Whitaker,	60
John Parker,	50	John Andrews,	50
Ezra Carter,	1 35	Eli H Kelsey,	3 35
Andrew Wheelock,	40	Marion Sibbald,	1 85
Joseph Hatch,	50	James Hat hall,	50
Samuel Allis,	1 50	Jona. Browning,	1 00
Hiram Hoyt,	1 00	H A Tefry,	50
Nathan Lidgett,	50	Washington Lemons,	50
S Southworth,	50	John Pettigill,	80
Peter Richardson,	50	Laura Owon,	1 00
Wm. Parker,	50	W R English,	2 00
John L Butler,	50	D Farlin,	50
Sarah Lancaster,	50	Daniel Jackson,	95
W K Barton,	75	John Tidwell,	50
Hiram Oakes,	50	Charles W Thime,	50

J. C. LITTLE, Attorney at Law and Claim Agent.

Kanerville, Iowa.

Residence—4 Doors below the Court House.

Kanerville, Feb. 6th, 1851.

REGULAR PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO KANERVILLE.

The fine light draught passenger steamer SARANAK, Capt. C. D. Blossom, will commence her regular trips at the opening of navigation between St. Louis and Kanerville, touching at all intermediate points. C. D. BLOSSOM, Captain.

OH YES! OH YES!!

The World on fire from the excitement caused by the Gold of California.

THE undersigned wishes to give notice to the inhabitants of this section of country that he is prepared to drive any number of SHEEP from this place to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake in the coming Spring on condition of one-half of the Sheep. The owners of the sheep should shear them early, and be prepared for an early start. The sheep should also be marked with the initials of the owners name on each side of the face with red paint. Those wishing to send sheep by him on the above terms, can leave their names and the number of their sheep with C. H. Bassett, at the store of C. Voorhis, Kanerville. The sheep he will receive on this side of the Missouri river, just previous to the time of starting which he will publish in the Guardian.

References.—C. H. Bassett, and E. M. Croome, Kanerville; Wm. Marindale, Peay Creek; L. T. Cook, Coonville; Martin Potter, Silver Creek; Joseph Thorn, Allred's Camp; John W. Cooley, Cooley's Mill; J. C. Hall, and John W. Lasey, North Pigeon. JESSE HOBSON.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

The Slanderer.

By Mrs. A. M. HARRIS.

Go, search the wide domain,
From south to northern pole;
No being half so mean is found,
That ever poisoned a soul.

From home to home these demons go,
Their neighbor's faults proclaim;
With slanderous tongue and deep they strive,
To blot the fairest name.

These treacherous foes are often seen
In dissimulation;
While on their vile deceitful tongues,
The deadly venom lies.

Even friendship's chain by them is riven--
The friends on whom we trust,
Often by their slanderous tales,
Are scattered like the dust.

Perdition's meet they know us not,
Their smile has passed away;
The heart that once with kindness beat
Is chilled in cold dismay.

'Tis then a deep and painful thrill
Steals through the wounded breast,
That seems to crush each noble thought
That e'er the heart possessed.

Can with their tongue compare;
For oft they place the silent tomb,
To break their vengeance there.

The bitter wrong may lie concealed,
May never securely sleep;
Yet slander, though it slumbers long,
Its sure reward shall reap.

MISCELLANY.

Hints for Social Life--Suicide.

Dr. W. H. Cook contends, not only that suicide is one of the most fearful crimes in the calendar, but that any course of action that injures the system or shortens life is a form of suicide, and will be rewarded as such at the last great judgment, particularly when those who have been following such a course, have been warned of its fatal tendency. He then specifies the following as among the habits of the age, by which health is impaired and premature death is secured:

Wearing thin shoes on a damp night and in rainy weather.

Building on the "air-tight principle."

Leading a life of enfeebling, stupid laziness, and keeping the mind in a round of unnatural excitement by reading novels.

Going to balls through all sorts of weather in the thinnest possible dress.

Dancing in crowded rooms till in a complete perspiration, and then going home through the damp air.

Sleeping on feather beds in seven-by-nine bed-rooms.

Surfeiting on hot and high stimulating dishes.

Beginning in childhood on tea, and going on from one step of stimulation to another, through coffee, chewing, smoking and drinking.

Living encased in dirt because too lazy to bathe the body.

Eating without taking time to masticate the food.

Allowing the love of gain so to absorb our minds, as not to leave us time to attend to health.

Following an unhealthy occupation because money can be made by it.

Temping the appetite with niceties when the stomach says, No.

Contriving to keep in a continual worry about something or nothing.

Retiring at midnight and rising at noon.

Gormandizing between meals.

Neglecting to take proper care of yourself when a simple disease first appears. [Iowa Star.]

Five Hundred Persons Destroyed by a Water-Spout.

On Saturday intelligence was received at Lloyds, London, under date Malta, Monday, the 8th ultimo, of a most awful occurrence, at the Island of Sicily, which had been swept by two enormous water-spouts accompanied by a terrific hurricane. Those who witnessed the phenomena described the water-spouts as two immense spherical bodies of water reaching from the clouds, they came nearly touching the earth, and as far as could be judged, at a quarter of a mile apart, traveling with immense velocity. They passed over the island near Marsala. In their progress houses were unroofed, trees uprooted, men and women, horses, cattle and sheep raised up, drawn into their vortex, and borne on to destruction; during their passage rain descended in cateracts, accompanied with hail stones of enormous size, and masses of ice. Going over Castellamarre, near Stabia, it destroyed half the town, and washed two hundred of the inhabitants into the sea, who all perished. Upward of five hundred persons have been destroyed by this terrible visitation, an immense amount of property, the country being laid waste for miles. The shipping in the harbor suffered severely, many vessels being destroyed, and their crews drowned. After the occurrence, numbers of dead human bodies were picked up, all frightfully mutilated and swollen. [St. Louis Times.]

Use of Good Men in Bad Times.

It is very necessary that good men should live in very bad times, not only to reprove a wicked world, but that God may not utterly destroy it as he once did in the days of Noah, when all flesh had corrupted its way; but also to season human conversation, to give cheer to wickedness, and to revive the practice of virtue by some great and bright examples, and to reduce those violence and injuries which are done under the sun; at least to struggle and contend with a corrupt age, which will not pass away so easily as it seems to do.

Mrs. Bloomer's Remarking.

Mrs. Bloomer, the author of the new style of dress, has an article in the last number of her paper, "The Liberator," in which she says that she has received the following letter from a friend who has been married, and who would never have commenced the movement--[Dedicated Tribune.]

Evidence of Folly.

Neglecting to advertise, and wondering that you do not succeed in business.

Refusing to take a newspaper, and being surprised that people laugh at your ignorance.

The Slanderer.

Go, search the wide domain,
From south to northern pole;
No being half so mean is found,
That ever poisoned a soul.

The Slanderer.

From home to home these demons go,
Their neighbor's faults proclaim;
With slanderous tongue and deep they strive,
To blot the fairest name.

The Slanderer.

These treacherous foes are often seen
In dissimulation;
While on their vile deceitful tongues,
The deadly venom lies.

The Slanderer.

Even friendship's chain by them is riven--
The friends on whom we trust,
Often by their slanderous tales,
Are scattered like the dust.

The Slanderer.

Perdition's meet they know us not,
Their smile has passed away;
The heart that once with kindness beat
Is chilled in cold dismay.

The Slanderer.

'Tis then a deep and painful thrill
Steals through the wounded breast,
That seems to crush each noble thought
That e'er the heart possessed.

The Slanderer.

Can with their tongue compare;
For oft they place the silent tomb,
To break their vengeance there.

The Slanderer.

The bitter wrong may lie concealed,
May never securely sleep;
Yet slander, though it slumbers long,
Its sure reward shall reap.

The Slanderer.

By the politeness of Col. Lea, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, we have been shown a relief of great rarity and interest, left for a few days at the Bureau. It was brought from the Pottawatomie Reservation, on the Kansas river, by Dr. Lykins, who has been residing there nearly twenty years out of thirty. It consists of four small rolls or strips of parchment, closely packed in the small compartments of a little box or locket of about an inch cubical content. On these parchments are written, in a style of unsurpassed excellence, and far more beautiful than print, portions of the Pentateuch, to be worn as frontlets, and intended as stimulants to the memory and moral sense.

The Slanderer.

Dr. Lykins obtained it from Pategwe, a Pottawatomie, who got it from his grandmother, a very old woman. It has been in this particular family about fifty years. They had originally two of them; but on one occasion, as the party in possession were crossing a rapid in some river in the lake country of the North, the other was irretrievably lost. The one lost was believed by the Indians to contain an account of the creation of the world. That brought by Dr. Lykins has been kept for a long period in the medicine bag of the tribe, used as a charm, and never allowed to suffer any exposure, until, by strong entreaty, and the great influence he had with Topinepec, the principal Pottawatomie chief, he was permitted to bring it on to Washington, but under a firm pledge to restore it on his return. It has hitherto been most carefully kept from the rapacious vision of the white man. Pategwe had it in his possession many years before his curiosity prompted him to cut the stitches of the cover and disclose the contents. But this coming to the knowledge of old Billy Caldwell, chief of the Council Bluffs band of the tribe, he strenuously advised Pategwe to shut it up and keep it close, and say nothing about having it. Dr. Lykins came to a knowledge of the circumstance of its possession from a half-breed.

The Slanderer.

The wonder is, how this singular article came into their possession. When asked how long they can trace back its history, they reply they cannot tell the time when they had it not. The question occurs here, does not this circumstance give some color to the idea, long and extensively entertained, that the Indians of our continent are more or less Jewish in their origin? [Nat. Intelligencer.]

The Slanderer.

The ancient palaces of the Popes, and the most magnificent in the world stands on the right hand of the Tiber, at Rome. The palace takes its name from the hill on which it stands, derived from one of those ancient impositions known as oracular deities, called by the Romans "Jupiter Vaticanus." Who began this building is not known, but it was occupied by Charlemagne, more than a thousand years ago, and has been increased by successive Popes, until it has reached its present dimensions. It contains a vast number of treasures in marbles, bronzes, frescoes, statues, paintings and gems, are unequalled in the world, and its library is the richest in Europe. The length of the museum of statues alone is computed to be a mile.

The Slanderer.

Our homes--what is their corner-stone but the virtue of women? And on what does social well-being rest, but on our homes? Must we not trace all other blessings of civilized life to the door of our private dwellings? Are not our hearth-stones--guarded by the holy forms of conjugal, filial, and pure love, (the corner-stones of church and state,)--more sacred than either--more necessary than both? Let our temples crumble, and our academies decay--let every public edifice, our halls of justice--and our capitals of state, be levelled with the dust--but spare our homes. Man did not invent, and he cannot improve or abrogate them. A private shelter to cover in two hearts dearer to each other than all the world--high walls to exclude the profane eyes of every human being--seclusion for children to feel that mother is a peculiar name--this is home, and here is the birth-place of every virtuous impulse, of every sacred thought. Here the church and the state must come for their origin and support. Oh, spare our homes! The love we experience there, gives us our faith in an Infinite Goodness; the purity and disinterested tenderness of home is our forest and our earnest of a better world. In the relations there established and fostered, do we find through life the chief solace and joy of existence. What friends deserve the name compared with those whom a birth-right gives us? One mother is worth a thousand friends--one sister, dearer and truer than twenty intimate companions. We who have played on the same hearth under the light of smiles--who date back to the same season of innocence and hope--in whose veins runs the same blood--do we not find that years only make more sacred and important the tie that binds us? Coldness may spring up--distance may separate--different spheres may divide; but those who can love anything, who continue to love at all, must find that the friends who God himself gave are wholly unlike any we can choose for ourselves, and that the yearning for these is the strongest spark in our expiring affection. [Oregon and Revelle.]

The Slanderer.

Neglecting to advertise, and wondering that you do not succeed in business.

Refusing to take a newspaper, and being surprised that people laugh at your ignorance.

The Slanderer.

Go, search the wide domain,
From south to northern pole;
No being half so mean is found,
That ever poisoned a soul.

From home to home these demons go,
Their neighbor's faults proclaim;
With slanderous tongue and deep they strive,
To blot the fairest name.

These treacherous foes are often seen
In dissimulation;
While on their vile deceitful tongues,
The deadly venom lies.

Even friendship's chain by them is riven--
The friends on whom we trust,
Often by their slanderous tales,
Are scattered like the dust.

Perdition's meet they know us not,
Their smile has passed away;
The heart that once with kindness beat
Is chilled in cold dismay.

'Tis then a deep and painful thrill
Steals through the wounded breast,
That seems to crush each noble thought
That e'er the heart possessed.

Can with their tongue compare;
For oft they place the silent tomb,
To break their vengeance there.

The bitter wrong may lie concealed,
May never securely sleep;
Yet slander, though it slumbers long,
Its sure reward shall reap.

By the politeness of Col. Lea, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, we have been shown a relief of great rarity and interest, left for a few days at the Bureau. It was brought from the Pottawatomie Reservation, on the Kansas river, by Dr. Lykins, who has been residing there nearly twenty years out of thirty. It consists of four small rolls or strips of parchment, closely packed in the small compartments of a little box or locket of about an inch cubical content. On these parchments are written, in a style of unsurpassed excellence, and far more beautiful than print, portions of the Pentateuch, to be worn as frontlets, and intended as stimulants to the memory and moral sense.

Dr. Lykins obtained it from Pategwe, a Pottawatomie, who got it from his grandmother, a very old woman. It has been in this particular family about fifty years. They had originally two of them; but on one occasion, as the party in possession were crossing a rapid in some river in the lake country of the North, the other was irretrievably lost. The one lost was believed by the Indians to contain an account of the creation of the world. That brought by Dr. Lykins has been kept for a long period in the medicine bag of the tribe, used as a charm, and never allowed to suffer any exposure, until, by strong entreaty, and the great influence he had with Topinepec, the principal Pottawatomie chief, he was permitted to bring it on to Washington, but under a firm pledge to restore it on his return. It has hitherto been most carefully kept from the rapacious vision of the white man. Pategwe had it in his possession many years before his curiosity prompted him to cut the stitches of the cover and disclose the contents. But this coming to the knowledge of old Billy Caldwell, chief of the Council Bluffs band of the tribe, he strenuously advised Pategwe to shut it up and keep it close, and say nothing about having it. Dr. Lykins came to a knowledge of the circumstance of its possession from a half-breed.

The wonder is, how this singular article came into their possession. When asked how long they can trace back its history, they reply they cannot tell the time when they had it not. The question occurs here, does not this circumstance give some color to the idea, long and extensively entertained, that the Indians of our continent are more or less Jewish in their origin? [Nat. Intelligencer.]

The ancient palaces of the Popes, and the most magnificent in the world stands on the right hand of the Tiber, at Rome. The palace takes its name from the hill on which it stands, derived from one of those ancient impositions known as oracular deities, called by the Romans "Jupiter Vaticanus." Who began this building is not known, but it was occupied by Charlemagne, more than a thousand years ago, and has been increased by successive Popes, until it has reached its present dimensions. It contains a vast number of treasures in marbles, bronzes, frescoes, statues, paintings and gems, are unequalled in the world, and its library is the richest in Europe. The length of the museum of statues alone is computed to be a mile.

Our homes--what is their corner-stone but the virtue of women? And on what does social well-being rest, but on our homes? Must we not trace all other blessings of civilized life to the door of our private dwellings? Are not our hearth-stones--guarded by the holy forms of conjugal, filial, and pure love, (the corner-stones of church and state,)--more sacred than either--more necessary than both? Let our temples crumble, and our academies decay--let every public edifice, our halls of justice--and our capitals of state, be levelled with the dust--but spare our homes. Man did not invent, and he cannot improve or abrogate them. A private shelter to cover in two hearts dearer to each other than all the world--high walls to exclude the profane eyes of every human being--seclusion for children to feel that mother is a peculiar name--this is home, and here is the birth-place of every virtuous impulse, of every sacred thought. Here the church and the state must come for their origin and support. Oh, spare our homes! The love we experience there, gives us our faith in an Infinite Goodness; the purity and disinterested tenderness of home is our forest and our earnest of a better world. In the relations there established and fostered, do we find through life the chief solace and joy of existence. What friends deserve the name compared with those whom a birth-right gives us? One mother is worth a thousand friends--one sister, dearer and truer than twenty intimate companions. We who have played on the same hearth under the light of smiles--who date back to the same season of innocence and hope--in whose veins runs the same blood--do we not find that years only make more sacred and important the tie that binds us? Coldness may spring up--distance may separate--different spheres may divide; but those who can love anything, who continue to love at all, must find that the friends who God himself gave are wholly unlike any we can choose for ourselves, and that the yearning for these is the strongest spark in our expiring affection. [Oregon and Revelle.]

Neglecting to advertise, and wondering that you do not succeed in business.

Refusing to take a newspaper, and being surprised that people laugh at your ignorance.

The Slanderer.

Go, search the wide domain,
From south to northern pole;
No being half so mean is found,
That ever poisoned a soul.

From home to home these demons go,
Their neighbor's faults proclaim;
With slanderous tongue and deep they strive,
To blot the fairest name.

These treacherous foes are often seen
In dissimulation;
While on their vile deceitful tongues,
The deadly venom lies.

Even friendship's chain by them is riven--
The friends on whom we trust,
Often by their slanderous tales,
Are scattered like the dust.

Perdition's meet they know us not,
Their smile has passed away;
The heart that once with kindness beat
Is chilled in cold dismay.

'Tis then a deep and painful thrill
Steals through the wounded breast,
That seems to crush each noble thought
That e'er the heart possessed.

Can with their tongue compare;
For oft they place the silent tomb,
To break their vengeance there.

The bitter wrong may lie concealed,
May never securely sleep;
Yet slander, though it slumbers long,
Its sure reward shall reap.

By the politeness of Col. Lea, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, we have been shown a relief of great rarity and interest, left for a few days at the Bureau. It was brought from the Pottawatomie Reservation, on the Kansas river, by Dr. Lykins, who has been residing there nearly twenty years out of thirty. It consists of four small rolls or strips of parchment, closely packed in the small compartments of a little box or locket of about an inch cubical content. On these parchments are written, in a style of unsurpassed excellence, and far more beautiful than print, portions of the Pentateuch, to be worn as frontlets, and intended as stimulants to the memory and moral sense.

Dr. Lykins obtained it from Pategwe, a Pottawatomie, who got it from his grandmother, a very old woman. It has been in this particular family about fifty years. They had originally two of them; but on one occasion, as the party in possession were crossing a rapid in some river in the lake country of the North, the other was irretrievably lost. The one lost was believed by the Indians to contain an account of the creation of the world. That brought by Dr. Lykins has been kept for a long period in the medicine bag of the tribe, used as a charm, and never allowed to suffer any exposure, until, by strong entreaty, and the great influence he had with Topinepec, the principal Pottawatomie chief, he was permitted to bring it on to Washington, but under a firm pledge to restore it on his return. It has hitherto been most carefully kept from the rapacious vision of the white man. Pategwe had it in his possession many years before his curiosity prompted him to cut the stitches of the cover and disclose the contents. But this coming to the knowledge of old Billy Caldwell, chief of the Council Bluffs band of the tribe, he strenuously advised Pategwe to shut it up and keep it close, and say nothing about having it. Dr. Lykins came to a knowledge of the circumstance of its possession from a half-breed.

The wonder is, how this singular article came into their possession. When asked how long they can trace back its history, they reply they cannot tell the time when they had it not. The question occurs here, does not this circumstance give some color to the idea, long and extensively entertained, that the Indians of our continent are more or less Jewish in their origin? [Nat. Intelligencer.]

The ancient palaces of the Popes, and the most magnificent in the world stands on the right hand of the Tiber, at Rome. The palace takes its name from the hill on which it stands, derived from one of those ancient impositions known as oracular deities, called by the Romans "Jupiter Vaticanus." Who began this building is not known, but it was occupied by Charlemagne, more than a thousand years ago, and has been increased by successive Popes, until it has reached its present dimensions. It contains a vast number of treasures in marbles, bronzes, frescoes, statues, paintings and gems, are unequalled in the world, and its library is the richest in Europe. The length of the museum of statues alone is computed to be a mile.

Our homes--what is their corner-stone but the virtue of women? And on what does social well-being rest, but on our homes? Must we not trace all other blessings of civilized life to the door of our private dwellings? Are not our hearth-stones--guarded by the holy forms of conjugal, filial, and pure love, (the corner-stones of church and state,)--more sacred than either--more necessary than both? Let our temples crumble, and our academies decay--let every public edifice, our halls of justice--and our capitals of state, be levelled with the dust--but spare our homes. Man did not invent, and he cannot improve or abrogate them. A private shelter to cover in two hearts dearer to each other than all the world--high walls to exclude the profane eyes of every human being--seclusion for children to feel that mother is a peculiar name--this is home, and here is the birth-place of every virtuous impulse, of every sacred thought. Here the church and the state must come for their origin and support. Oh, spare our homes! The love we experience there, gives us our faith in an Infinite Goodness; the purity and disinterested tenderness of home is our forest and our earnest of a better world. In the relations there established and fostered, do we find through life the chief solace and joy of existence. What friends deserve the name compared with those whom a birth-right gives us? One mother is worth a thousand friends--one sister, dearer and truer than twenty intimate companions. We who have played on the same hearth under the light of smiles--who date back to the same season of innocence and hope--in whose veins runs the same blood--do we not find that years only make more sacred and important the tie that binds us? Coldness may spring up--distance may separate--different spheres may divide; but those who can love anything, who continue to love at all, must find that the friends who God himself gave are wholly unlike any we can choose for ourselves, and that the yearning for these is the strongest spark in our expiring affection. [Oregon and Revelle.]

Neglecting to advertise, and wondering that you do not succeed in business.

Refusing to take a newspaper, and being surprised that people laugh at your ignorance.

The Slanderer.

Go, search the wide domain,
From south to northern pole;
No being half so mean is found,
That ever poisoned a soul.

From home to home these demons go,
Their neighbor's faults proclaim;
With slanderous tongue and deep they strive,
To blot the fairest name.

These treacherous foes are often seen
In dissimulation;
While on their vile deceitful tongues,
The deadly venom lies.

Even friendship's chain by them is riven--
The friends on whom we trust,
Often by their slanderous tales,
Are scattered like the dust.

Perdition's meet they know us not,
Their smile has passed away;
The heart that once with kindness beat
Is chilled in cold dismay.

'Tis then a deep and painful thrill
Steals through the wounded breast,
That seems to crush each noble thought
That e'er the heart possessed.

Can with their tongue compare;
For oft they place the silent tomb,
To break their vengeance there.

The bitter wrong may lie concealed,
May never securely sleep;
Yet slander, though it slumbers long,
Its sure reward shall reap.

By the politeness of Col. Lea, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, we have been shown a relief of great rarity and interest, left for a few days at the Bureau. It was brought from the Pottawatomie Reservation, on the Kansas river, by Dr. Lykins, who has been residing there nearly twenty years out of thirty. It consists of four small rolls or strips of parchment, closely packed in the small compartments of a little box or locket of about an inch cubical content. On these parchments are written, in a style of unsurpassed excellence, and far more beautiful than print, portions of the Pentateuch, to be worn as frontlets, and intended as stimulants to the memory and moral sense.

Dr. Lykins obtained it from Pategwe, a Pottawatomie, who got it from his grandmother, a very old woman. It has been in this particular family about fifty years. They had originally two of them; but on one occasion, as the party in possession were crossing a rapid in some river in the lake country of the North, the other was irretrievably lost. The one lost was believed by the Indians to contain an account of the creation of the world. That brought by Dr. Lykins has been kept for a long period in the medicine bag of the tribe, used as a charm, and never allowed to suffer any exposure, until, by strong entreaty, and the great influence he had with Topinepec, the principal Pottawatomie chief, he was permitted to bring it on to Washington, but under a firm pledge to restore it on his return. It has hitherto been most carefully kept from the rapacious vision of the white man. Pategwe had it in his possession many years before his curiosity prompted him to cut the stitches of the cover and disclose the contents. But this coming to the knowledge of old Billy Caldwell, chief of the Council Bluffs band of the tribe, he strenuously advised Pategwe to shut it up and keep it close, and say nothing about having it. Dr. Lykins came to a knowledge of the circumstance of its possession from a half-breed.

The wonder is, how this singular article came into their possession. When asked how long they can trace back its history, they reply they cannot tell the time when they had it not. The question occurs here, does not this circumstance give some color to the idea, long and extensively entertained, that the Indians of our continent are more or less Jewish in their origin? [Nat. Intelligencer.]

The ancient palaces of the Popes, and the most magnificent in the world stands on the right hand of the Tiber, at Rome. The palace takes its name from the hill on which it stands, derived from one of those ancient impositions known as oracular deities, called by the Romans "Jupiter Vaticanus." Who began this building is not known, but it was occupied by Charlemagne, more than a thousand years ago, and has been increased by successive Popes, until it has reached its present dimensions. It contains a vast number of treasures in marbles, bronzes, frescoes, statues, paintings and gems, are unequalled in the world, and its library is the richest in Europe. The length of the museum of statues alone is computed to be a mile.

Our homes--what is their corner-stone but the virtue of women? And on what does social well-being rest, but on our homes? Must we not trace all other blessings of civilized life to the door of our private dwellings? Are not our hearth-stones--guarded by the holy forms of conjugal, filial, and pure love, (the corner-stones of church and state,)--more sacred than either--more necessary than both? Let our temples crumble, and our academies decay--let every public edifice, our halls of justice--and our capitals of state, be levelled with the dust--but spare our homes. Man did not invent, and he cannot improve or abrogate them. A private shelter to cover in two hearts dearer to each other than all the world--high walls to exclude the profane eyes of every human being--seclusion for children to feel that mother is a peculiar name--this is home, and here is the birth-place of every virtuous impulse, of every sacred thought. Here the church and the state must come for their origin and support. Oh, spare our homes! The love we experience there, gives us our faith in an Infinite Goodness; the purity and disinterested tenderness of home is our forest and our earnest of a better world. In the relations there established and fostered, do we find through life the chief solace and joy of existence. What friends deserve the name compared with those whom a birth-right gives us? One mother is worth a thousand friends--one sister, dearer and truer than twenty intimate companions. We who have played on the same hearth under the light of smiles--who date back to the same season of innocence and hope--in whose veins runs the same blood--do we not find that years only make more sacred and important the tie that binds us? Coldness may spring up--distance may separate--different spheres may divide; but those who can love anything, who continue to love at all, must find that the friends who God himself gave are wholly unlike any we can choose for ourselves, and that the yearning for these is the strongest spark in our expiring affection. [Oregon and Revelle.]

Neglecting to advertise, and wondering that you do not succeed in business.

Refusing to take a newspaper, and being surprised that people laugh at your ignorance.

The Slanderer.

Go, search the wide domain,
From south to northern pole;
No being half so mean is found,
That ever poisoned a soul.

From home to home these demons go,
Their neighbor's faults proclaim;
With slanderous tongue and deep they strive,
To blot the fairest name.

These treacherous foes are often seen
In dissimulation;
While on their vile deceitful tongues,
The deadly venom lies.

Even friendship's chain by them is riven--
The friends on whom we trust,
Often by their slanderous tales,
Are scattered like the dust.

Perdition's meet they know us not,
Their smile has passed away;
The heart that once with kindness beat
Is chilled in cold dismay.

'Tis then a deep and painful thrill
Steals through the wounded breast,
That seems to crush each noble thought
That e'er the heart possessed.

Can with their tongue compare;
For oft they place the silent tomb,
To break their vengeance there.

The bitter wrong may lie concealed,
May never securely sleep;
Yet slander, though it slumbers long,
Its sure reward shall reap.

By the politeness of Col. Lea, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, we have been shown a relief of great rarity and interest, left for a few days at the Bureau. It was brought from the Pottawatomie Reservation, on the Kansas river, by Dr. Lykins, who has been residing there nearly twenty years out of thirty. It consists of four small rolls or strips of parchment, closely packed in the small compartments of a little box or locket of about an inch cubical content. On these parchments are written, in a style of unsurpassed excellence, and far more beautiful than print, portions of the Pentateuch, to be worn as frontlets, and intended as stimulants to the memory and moral sense.

Dr. Lykins obtained it from Pategwe, a Pottawatomie, who got it from his grandmother, a very old woman. It has been in this particular family about fifty years. They had originally two of them; but on one occasion, as the party in possession were crossing a rapid in some river in the lake country of the North, the other was irretrievably lost. The one lost was believed by the Indians to contain an account of the creation of the world. That brought by Dr. Lykins has been kept for a long period in the medicine bag of the tribe, used as a charm, and never allowed to suffer any exposure, until, by strong entreaty, and the great influence he had with Topinepec, the principal Pottawatomie chief, he was permitted to bring it on to Washington, but under a firm pledge to restore it on his return. It has hitherto been most carefully kept from the rapacious vision of the white man. Pategwe had it in his possession many years before his curiosity prompted him to cut the stitches of the cover and disclose the contents. But this coming to the knowledge of old Billy Caldwell, chief of the Council Bluffs band of the tribe, he strenuously advised Pategwe to shut it up and keep it close, and say nothing about having it. Dr. Lykins came to a knowledge of the circumstance of its possession from a half-breed.

The wonder is, how this singular article came into their possession. When asked how long they can trace back its history, they reply they cannot tell the time when they had it not. The question occurs here, does not this circumstance give some color to the idea, long and extensively entertained, that the Indians of our continent are more or less Jewish in their origin? [Nat. Intelligencer.]

The ancient palaces of the Popes, and the most magnificent in the world stands on the right hand of the Tiber, at Rome. The palace takes its name from the hill on which it stands, derived from one of those ancient impositions known as oracular deities, called by the Romans "Jupiter Vaticanus." Who began this building is not known, but it was occupied by Charlemagne, more than a thousand years ago, and has been increased by successive Popes, until it has reached its present dimensions. It contains a vast number of treasures in marbles, bronzes, frescoes, statues, paintings and gems, are unequalled in the world, and its library is the richest in Europe. The length of the museum of statues alone is computed to be a mile.

Our homes--what is their corner-stone but the virtue of women? And on what does social well-being rest, but on our homes? Must we not trace all other blessings of civilized life to the door of our private dwellings? Are not our hearth-stones--guarded by the holy forms of conjugal, filial, and pure love, (the corner-stones of church and state,)--more sacred than either--more necessary than both? Let our temples crumble, and our academies decay--let every public edifice, our halls of justice--and our capitals of state, be levelled with the dust--but spare our homes. Man did not invent, and he cannot improve or abrogate them. A private shelter to cover in two hearts dearer to each other than all the world--high walls to exclude the profane eyes of every human being--seclusion for children to feel that mother is a peculiar name--this is home, and here is the birth-place of every virtuous impulse, of every sacred thought. Here the church and the state must come for their origin and support. Oh, spare our homes! The love we experience there, gives us our faith in an Infinite Goodness; the purity and disinterested tenderness of home is our forest and our earnest of a better world. In the relations there established and fostered, do we find through life the chief solace and joy of existence. What friends deserve the name compared with those whom a birth-right gives us? One mother is worth a thousand friends--one sister, dearer and truer than twenty intimate companions. We who have played on the same hearth under the light of smiles--who date back to the same season of innocence and hope--in whose veins runs the same blood--do we not find that years only make more sacred and important the tie that binds us? Coldness may spring up--distance may separate--different spheres may divide; but those who can love anything, who continue to love at all, must find that the friends who God himself gave are wholly unlike any we can choose for ourselves, and that the yearning for these is the strongest spark in our expiring affection. [Oregon and Revelle.]

Neglecting to advertise, and wondering that you do not succeed in business.

Refusing to take a newspaper, and being surprised that people laugh at your ignorance.

The Slanderer.

Go, search the wide domain,
From south to northern pole;
No being half so mean is found,
That ever poisoned a soul.